- Marketing
- Organizational Behavior
- Human Resources
- Entrepreneurship
- Finance and Economics
- Operations
- Other areas that meet the needs of the School of Business

The ideal colleague is an engaged teacher and mentor who draws on academic knowledge, professional experience, or both to give students an applied and rigorous business education within Erskine's Christian liberal arts environment.

Responsibilities

- Teach undergraduate courses according to qualifications and the needs of the College.
- Develop and deliver engaging, academically rigorous, and professionally relevant courses.
- Integrate contemporary business practices, cases, technologies, and professional experience into the classroom.
- Advise and mentor students in their academic, professional, and vocational development.
- Contribute to curriculum development, assessment, and continuous improvement.
- Maintain professional currency through scholarly, professional, consulting, entrepreneurial, or industry activity.
- Build relationships with businesses and organizations that support internships, experiential learning, student projects, and career preparation.
- Serve the Department of Business, the School of Business, the entire Erskine College.
- Support Erskine College's Christian mission contributing to the integration of faith and learning.

Qualifications

- A master's degree in business or a related field from an appropriately accredited institution.
- Academic preparation sufficient to teach in 4 or more areas represented in the School of Business.
- Ability to teach at least four in-person courses per semester.
- Evidence of effective written and oral communication.
- A commitment to high-quality undergraduate teaching and student mentorship.

- A personal Christian faith and commitment to Erskine College's mission, vision, and Statement of Faith.
- A willingness and ability to thoughtfully integrate Christian faith and ethical reasoning with one's academic or professional discipline.

Preferred Requirements

Preference will be given to candidates with one or more of the following:

- A Ph.D., D.B.A., or other appropriate terminal degree in business or a related field.
- Previous college or university teaching experience.
- Demonstrated excellence in undergraduate teaching.
- Significant profe ssional, managerial, or entrepreneurial experience.
- Experience with experiential learning, internships, or industry partnerships.
- Familiarity with current business technologies, including analytics tools and AI.
- Experience with curriculum development or program assessment.
